TRAILBLAZERS PROGRAMME (ALP)

Softstrings Ukulele

This invention has strings that serve as buttons to press the notes. These buttons are softer and have more surface area than the strings. The buttons are able to move horizontally on the string to adjust to the strings on the ukulele.

Some people have difficulty playing the ukulele due to the strings being too hard and fingers getting sore from pressing the strings.

Advantages:

- suitable for any ukulele
- allow the skin around the edges of their fingers remain soft and reduces string markings
- made from cheap and easy to find recyclable materials
- clasp that can be expanded or retracted in width to fit any normal ukulele neck.

For learners who want to learn ukulele but they dislike the string marks they get on their hands after playing.

When ukulele is played after a while the skin at the edges of their fingers become hard and some girls may find this unattractive or unpleasant. This can help reduce the roughness of the strings.

- Next round - Interview on 20 & 27 July

Ms Claire Zhang

Parent of a P1 & P4 student

“PGPS has been more than just a school for us! It has become a nurturing environment where my daughters, can thrive academically and personally. The dedication of the teachers and the emphasis on holistic development are just a few of the reasons why PGPS stands out as our school of choice. The teachers here are very patience and supportive, always encouraging my children to do their best.

Choosing PGPS means choosing a future where every child is empowered to achieve their fullest potential. We are grateful to be part of such a wonderful school!”

Ms Alice Tan

Parent of a P4 student

“PGPS teachers have provided care & support to my children over the years. One of my children has already graduated, and the positive impact of the teachers’ dedication is evident in their growth and success.

Being a parent volunteer of the Parent Support Group, I have had the privilege to witness the effort the teachers put into planning extra activities. These fun and engaging activities truly enrich the students’ educational experiences and make school a joyful place.”
